Chennai, Jan. 3: Chemplast Sanmar's PVC plant at Cuddalore has not suffered any major damage on account of cyclone Thane, the company said today.

“None of the critical production equipment has been affected and the fully insured plant is expected to be fully operational in a maximum of 10 days,” says a press release from the company.

While supplies to customers would not be possible during this period, Chemplast is confident of making this up in the next few weeks thereafter, the release says.

Plant personnel are currently engaged in distributing relief materials to the affected local community. Chemplast has committed to the district administration to provide drinking water from their desalination plant and other necessities over the next few days, it says.
